Conference of Pennsylvania Railway Officials at Pittsburg-Large Sum of Money to Be Spent.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18 .- President A. J. Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, together with Second Vice President C. E. Pugh, Third Vice President S. M. Prevost and W. H. Brown, chief engineer of the company, are in Pittsburg wrestling with and elsewhere. He was appointed bishop of the freight congestion problem, which has seriously affected Pittsburg industries for some time. President Cassatt called before him the division superintendents and others who could furnish data of any kind regarding the freight congestion in this district. Blue prints of all the Pennsylvania lines in the territory were studied in detail, and though much secrecy is maintained by all, it is known that President Cassatt has been made aware of the precise situation here. It is believed he will authorize any improvement that in his opinion will aid in relieving the choked condition of the lines. At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Pitcairn said: "The conference was devoted to the freight situation. Plans for relief of the congestion by the increase of facilities for handling business was considered. It remains now for the board to

Relief for the freight congestion in the Pittsburg district, which is considered the key to the troubles east and west, is by this statement promised for as early carrying out as possible. The freight congestion here has been a fruitful source of trouble for industries of all kinds. Iron and steel men, wholesalers, grocers, commission men, builders and others have made bitter complaints about delay of cars, loss of freights and other ills.

Music Teacher Stabbed to Death in Her Father's House.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 18 .- Miss Florence McFarlin, aged twenty-one years, a music teacher, was stabbed to death in her father's house here to-day by another woman, and an hour later Mrs. Lulu Young, wife of Frank Young, at one time city purchasing agent, was arrested as being the supposed murderer. The woman who committed the deed rang the doorbell of the McFarlin home this morning, and when Miss Florence opened it, attacked her with a knife. Miss McFarlin ran screaming through the hall into the kitchen, closely pursued by her assailant. In the kitchen she stumbled, half turning. In a flash her pursuer was upon her, and with a rapid slash had stabbed her five times. Miss McFarlin sank to the floor, dying instantly. The murderess fled. The only words she was heard to utter were: "She has come between myself and my husband, and I'm glad that she is dead," The dead woman was the daughter of a rail-

British Minister Thinks There Is No Need of Reciprocity.

HAVANA, Nov. 18 .- Lionel Carden, the British minister, in a report on the situation in Cuba, says none of the evils so confidently predicted by the advocates of reciprocity has come to pass. No sugar estate of any importance was compelled to stop, and the recent crisis, far from being disastrous to the island's prosperity, has really been of immediate service to Cuba in teaching the planters to be economical in the management of their plantations, thus lowering the cost of production until it is thought that plantation expenses will not exceed 1 cent, per pound. Under the present conditions, the minister adds, Cuba has little to fear from competition of other countries in the production of sugar, whether cane or beet.

Former Hugs the Latter and Pays Tribute to the American Soldier in a Speech.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 .- "As a soldier who has served many years I know how honors such as those that have been bestowed upon me come. They come to individuals, as they have come to me, through the loyal devotion and service of other officers and soldiers-that great mass of men who compose the army of the United States. They have helped me to my honors and they helped my loyal friend Wheaton to his honor, and no man is more free to acknowledge it than that prince of soldiers."

With this tribute to the American soldier, Major General Chaffee fitted a climax to a touching demonstration of the comradeship of barrack and camp life to-night at a banquet at the Union League Club. Although King is not allowed to play on either the first or second team, still he continues to come out and coach. Green is devoting all his time to the center men. Force remained at center on the 'varsity all the time to-day, and the freshman, Carrick, displaced Sugden for the whole practice on the second team. It is very probable that a part of the practice, at least, to-morrow will be open.

De Pauw Is Not in Good Shape for the Contest with Notre Dame.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Ind., Nov. 18 .- With the hardest game-the Notre Dame-of the season before it. De Pauw has gone into a slump along football lines, and the result probably will be fatal to the outcome of that contest. The game will finish the season for the present football team. The men have lost interest in their work and cannot be made to put the necessary ginger into porary order restraining the company from | their playing. Even though the team may end this season with a poor game, the showing it has made before this, this year, gives evidence of good work next season. The line will remain practically intact and the best of the substitute backs will be here again. The team will lose heavily in the absence of Captain Pearson, who has been playing tackle, and Brown fullback. End J. W. Whote, goal tender; Michael O'Mal- widow for an exclusive story of the act Conley will be gone, with Halfback Haw- ley, substitute. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 18.-Notre Dame has settled down to the task of preparation for scalping De Pauw this week and is confident that there will be little difficulty in winning the second game for the State championship. Saturday's contest with the physicians and surgeons proved conclusively that the 'varsity can play a strong offensive game when called upon.

particularly burdensome for Chairman Hitt, of the committee on foreign affairs. Between Livernash pulling wires for exclusion and Minister Wu protesting against the insult to his race, the leaders had more trouble than a cat walking on fly-paper. Livernash's picture ought to be framed in a crescent; he works while everybody else sleeps. But he works, too, while they are awake. He is a marked man in appearance, small in stature, with a thin, sallow countenance and attenuated form; his nose is very sharp, and supports heavy rimmed spectacles balanced far out toward its end. He always counts ten before he speaks; after he has begun, he goes on and on like a Puritan preacher, and all the forces of the underworld cannot stop him. It was as a "freak artist" in journalism however, that he gained fame. His specialty was the invention of wild things for a wild newspaper to do. He would sit all day in a big bare room and think; and what his handicap of 150 pins in a twenty-game mind brought forth would make a stone career was the style of attack of which his enemies made him a target during the late campaign. One of their tricks was to reprint unflattering articles about him which had appeared before he became a member of its staff, in the paper for which he was then working. Then they went into the byways and hedges, and raked out and published broadcast all the disagreeable stories they could attach name to. Many of these were literature of the hair-raising sort. To show how little we of the East realize what a Pacific coast campaign of personalities is like, it may be mentioned that one of the broadsides of the opposition accused Livernash of being insane, and went on to describe his remarkable doings while in that condition It told of his trial for the attempted killing, by poisoned wine and by shooting, of a man named Ethridge; of the defense that Livernash was the victim of a sort of "sleep-walking" condition; of his being put under the influence of a hypnotic expert in court, having needles stuck into him without flinching, and telling all about an imaginary plot against his life at the suggestion of the hypnotist. Other tales described him as masquerading in female attire, and being arrested while carrying a gripsack filled with chloroform, prussic acid, etc. Still another told how Livernash was assigned to write up, for his paper, the story of John Doe's suicide, and how he improved the occasion to accuse a rival yellow journal of having contracted to "cover" a lynching and barely escaped becoming a victim himself, the timely in-tervention of his managing editor being all pulled through by a safe majority. The Pacific coast has a taste for life stories abounding in dramatic action; and in Livernash's case it got just what it liked and plenty of it. His predecessor in Congress and competitor at the polls was Julius Kahn, the ex-actor. A matter of 214 votes has simply jumped the genius of melodrama across the footlights.

WAGES AND RAILROADS.

In spite of this line of attack, Livernash that saved him.

As Transportation Costs Less Labor Has Steadily Profited. Wages have always been low in those parts of the country far ahead of or re-moved from railroad facilities, and to-day the lowest wages found in the United States are in those States which have the poorest railroad facilities. Whenever the the railroads come into a new community wages are almost immediately doubled. The following table, showing the most of transportation per ton per mile for each decade of the last fifty years and the average tion facilities and the reduction of our railroad rates have done for American labor: Wages Cost of transportation per tonmile in cents.

It will be seen that as our transportation bor have steadily risen, and that, too, in an almost constant proportion. In the last fifty years our railroad mileage has grown from a few thousand miles of scattered and disconnected links into a great railroad system of over two hundred thousand miles, every mile of which is in connection with every other mile, equalizing labor conditions and leveling prices throughout the whole country, preventing either local famine or local waste of surpluses. This and the reduction during the same period of our railroad rates from 31/2 cents per ton per shores. Yet in the face of this great suppiy of labor, and most of it extremely cheap labor, that has poured in upon us, we have been enabled to develop our industries and
